WHY MEAT STAYS DEAR.

The question relative to the price of meat is one which is being discussed in all parts of the United States, for the reason that the price is oppressive compared with the prices of other articles of food. Why it is dear, and why it has not fallen in value the same as other articles of consumption, may be explained by the following from an eastern gentleman who has studied the meat question pretty thoroughly: While the consumer is paying as much as ever for his beef, the producer is receiving barely half as much as he did four and five years ago. In Chicago fair to prime beef is sold, wholesale, at from two to three cents a pound, which will be most interesting figures for the householder to lay alongside of his butcher bill; and the average price for best cattle in New York is far lower than in recent years. $1.35 a hundred weight being the current average. These reduced prices are driving farmers out of the business, causing failures in the cattle trade and rendering unprofitable enormous investments in cattle ranches; but the tax of the middleman is large enough to prevent the consumer from getting the benefit of this reduction. The other great food staples, wheat, corn, and provisions, have not increased in gross product during the last eight years; but the price has fallen simply because foreign demand has grown less. If baker's bread is still nearer its old cost than it was, and it is possible for any one to take advantage of the lower price. "Cattle, other than milk cows, were 33,511,750 now—an increase of over one-half. Yet wholesale prices for cattle here and in New York are 23 per cent. higher than nine years ago, and retail prices here show no change, except as "Chicago dressed beef" is furnished more cheaply. The meat bill continues the largest, the most wasteful and the least satisfactory of all household expenditures. Foreign exports have not increased, no new demand has sprung up, and as all American families are in the habit of consuming meat freely, the price has not been sustained here as it is claimed to have been in England; by the addition of new classes to the ranks of consumers. The conclusion is inevitable that the machinery for distributing the millions of cattle added to our western supply is unnecessarily costly. If it were cheaper because freight rates have been reduced and new methods in the west cheaper eastern bread, but the rates upon meat are so arranged as to discriminate against dressed beef and to deprive the consumer of new appliances for shipping meat in refrigerators for a ring of "cavens," powerful as the Standard Oil Company, controls the whole-sale prices in Chicago and Kansas City, and levies toll on the food of a continent through railroad rates which enable it to remain master of the situation. In the East the rise in the price of meat is due to the profits by the owners of abattoirs, whose profits would disappear if cheap meat were permitted to come East. It is difficult to believe that this system can be maintained under the interstate-commerce act. When it is swept away the retail price of meat will drop one-third. For the present, only one of every four cents paid for meat at least one goes to this virtual monopoly in the sale, distribution, and transportation of beef.

TELEGRAPHIC BREVITIES.

Interesting bits of information gathered from the four quarters of the globe. Manitoba crop prospects are bright. The strike of the conductors of Yanke is ended. A decisive victory for the Amer's troops over the Chikils is reported. It is now estimated that the Indians even crop will be 60 or 70 percent of an average.

IN ERIN'S BEHALF.

A monster Irish demonstration in Chicago attended by thousands.

Heavy Losses of Montana Ranchmen.

Butter, M. T. Aug. 16.—It is now certain that the losses among cattle last winter by storms and bad weather were much greater than the large estimates given at that time. The ranges have been thoroughly traversed, and cattlemen admit that losses will in no case be less than 50 per cent, while in many instances they will run as high as 75.

Deaths From New York Cattle.

Townsend, N. Y., Aug. 16.—A dispatch from the West says that a man among the cattle in this neighborhood. Ten days ago a man brought a herd of twenty-eight cows from Jefferson County. Seven were killed and sold, when it was discovered that the calves had Texas fever. Ten died and the rest were killed in the presence of the State Veterinary Surgeon.

Ex-Governor Blackburn Dying.

Louisville, Ky., Aug. 16.—Ex-Governor Lake H. Blackburn, who has been dangerously ill at Frankfort, Ky., for some weeks, is rapidly sinking, and his death may be expected at any moment. His family, including his wife, Senator Blackburn, and his children, are at his bedside. His trouble is Bright's disease and heart affection.
